Be the first to add a comment!Let us take this moment to pause and reflect on the irony of the situation. The left thinks it's not enough to be just pro-life; that we need to be pro-life, pro-womens' rights, pro-freedom of speech, pro-democracy, etc., etc. But they themselves are the first to object to the idea that women should be given equal consideration as men. And they not only object, they go out of their way to shout it from the rooftops, and then turn around and accuse those of us who aren't so loud of being "silenced." No, really. I don't have a problem with people who are against abortion; I just think people on the left need to come out of the closet on this one, which is pretty much where they've been since Roe v. Wade in 1973. It's not that pro-choice people are against abortion, or that pro-life people are for abortion. It's that they all seem to be against any other kind of woman's freedom, all the while believing that no one else has that right. Leftists have it all figured out, don't they? Everyone should be free to have sex with whoever and whenever they want; what's the big deal? Everyone 2edc1e01e8
