Any licensed gambling activity can be dangerous for your finances, so please read our Disclaimer] Introduction To be perfectly clear, Fishing Planet: Cornucopia Pack is a free-to-play game, so it is not designed to guarantee any sort of player earnings like, well, most of the games we review here. No. Cornucopia Pack is really just designed to be fun, with a single fishing related prize draw for every 50,000.00 ringgit spent on the game. Yes, every fiftieth ringgit you spend on this game will give you one chance at the world's champion Cornucopia Pack. But wait, there's more! This isn't just any world's champion Cornucopia Pack. No. Since Fishing Planet: Cornucopia Pack is a slot game themed after the Japanese game, Japanese Sushi and Japanese Jumbo Squid, it comes with a limited edition, limited to only one in the world, Japanese Sushi-inspired reel package. So, what should you know before you dive in? Fishing Planet: Cornucopia Pack has got just three reels, a total of 20 paylines that makes it (very marginally) a games-per-day play compared to Leander Blackstone that has 800 games-per-day limit. The reward-per-payline is also lower compared to Leander Blackstone. The Fish symbols pay up to 100x your bet. The bonus round gets progressively harder as you play. The slot's theme is related to Samurai's visit to Japan in the year 300 We are going to look at the title's History and unique features. History and Game Play Fishing Planet: Cornucopia Pack is a game created by Yggdrasil and published by Skillmachine Limited. Yggdrasil, as I explained at the start, is famous for their mobile games and PC games. They are an Australasian game developer, publisher, and distributor. In case you are wondering, a distributor is a company that arranges for the sale of a certain game and delivers the game to the player. In
