With the new HyperMotion Technology, players will feel more connected to the game's virtual surroundings, and will also improve the user experience and visual fidelity of the game. The data captured from the real-life motion capture suits can be further used to analyse player performance within the environment of the game. Moreover, the new 'FIFA Motion Teaming' feature allows players to alter tactics depending on their closest rival and teammates, while AI-powered dribbling and goalkeeping enhances the new player intelligence. 'World Class Teamplay' and 'My Teammate' features also help players collaborate with others in the team, and the new 'Player Creator' tool will allow players to create custom players and then share them in the 'Create-a-Club' mode. Additionally, 'The Journey' mode and expansion pack 'Division Rivals' will offer more content, while the new 'Quick Start' and 'Reset to Game' features will keep players connected. However, the new game modes and features will not come as a surprise to FIFA players, as they had previously tested out a new motion capture suit in the beta version of FIFA 20.
