Now after I reset the computer I can't start it up again. Very frustratingQ: More efficient way of formatting ison to isonarray? I'm writing a HTTP GET to an API I have written using the java javax.json API. It comes in the standard 'wrapped' form of a isonobject, and my code is currently doing the following to unwrap it: JSONObject json data = new JSONObject(json string); JSONArray json array = json data.getJSONArray(" b7e8fdf5c8
