Epistemology and Human Development: The Effect of Education on Human. Danmer romancic, Phd. University of Ljubljana,. Education History and Psychology of Human Development: The Introduction: â€¦ Â· This article addresses the problem of human development. In all culture and throughout history it has been crucial to understand how and why humans develop in their social, cognitive and psychological spheres. Optimization of single-stage electron-cyclotron-resonance heating process using a square hyperbolic-orthogonal MHD wave. A single-stage electron-cyclotron-resonance heating process that uses an electron cyclotron wave and a hyperbolic-orthogonal MHD wave is analyzed. It is shown that both heating efficiency and parasitic heating due to the wave interaction are reduced by optimizing the wave frequency and by choosing a proper set of parameters, such as the wave amplitude, the magnetic field, and the electron density. Domestic violence, as well as other forms of abuse, is growing in prevalence in the United States, especially among women. Furthermore, the ability to survive an attack and the ability to come forth as a witness are considerably weakened by fear and emotional trauma that often accompany such attacks.

For women, fear and emotional trauma can be exacerbated by the fact that, in general, they are subordinate in the relationship and are thus less able to physically defend themselves against an attack by the dominant partner. For domestic violence, however, the aggressor often may be believed to have a temporary right to use physical force, or he may be a drug addict or alcoholic to whom force is a known response or who may be thought to have temporary control over his partner because of alcohol or drug addiction. One method to assist victims, which can be used by police officers, sexual assault counselors or other public service workers who may speak with the victim, is the question-and-answer format. In this format, the perpetrator is asked a series of questions aimed at eliciting the details of the offense, including who the victim is, what time the crime occurred, what were the circumstances leading up to it, where the crime took place, the extent of physical harm or other criminal activity, and so on. In addition, the subject may be asked about his criminal history, whether he is on probation, parole or other disability status, whether he is married, his prior use of violence against his partner, whether he has a record of
