uribe, especially considering his major league success. gaby sanchez is a roster longshot at best for san diego, and the padres are tied for the worst record in the national league with the pirates and reds. mauer has 24 rbis in 16 at-bats, which is not good enough for the twins to make the playoffs. as a symbol of protest, the gay community keeps saying there are no gay people in the taliban. and i really wonder if some of you ladies out there realize how many of your family members are not only gay, but pro gay. i just thought you all should be aware. i just know there are a lot of closet cases out there that are sure to be hurt by what is going on. so, please be careful about who you talk to. we are a family and i don't want my daughters exposed to other family members who may not be loving and accepting of everyone. there is so much ignorance and that's why so many children are being neglected. i've been thinking a lot lately about the devaluation of true sexuality; about the way we behave instead of being ourselves, about the way we define ourselves as "gay" or "straight". this stereotype of being gay as a lifestyle is not something that i want to give up. it makes my life, well, just more complicated, but that's not a bad thing, as long as it allows me to feel comfortable with who i am. do you know what it's like not to be able to feel comfortable with your sexuality? have you ever been pulled out of a party because of your boyfriend or girlfriend? do you know what it's like to be asked, "why didn't you tell me you were straight? if you have ever felt uncomfortable being who you are in your own home, a place that you know is safe, no matter what you do, i can relate to you. but i do want to be able to define my own sexuality. i'm not interested in being defined by what you perceive my sexuality to be. that's why i think it's so important for people like me to be able to choose our path without fear of retribution. i'm a straight woman, but i've never felt this way. the fact that i am gay should not define who i am. this is who i am, but you're free to define me however you see fit.
