Lawsuits and the death of Top Cap and Top Ramen: WHAT NOW? Earlier this summer the health care industry took a major blow. A landmark lawsuit where four of the biggest players in the health care industry, Aetna, Humana, Cigna and Anthem collectively were sued for allegedly causing Top Cap and Top Ramen to terminate their benefits plans.

Immediately following the verdict, the four companies announced they would no longer deny claims for certain benefits and more importantly they would reimburse participants for any claims paid in error. While we were pleased that the $2.3 billion verdict was thrown out by the circuit court, we were disappointed in the judge's decision to throw out the claims against Top Cap and Top Ramen. A lot of the plaintiffs in the case focused on the Top Caps and Top Ramen, the only remaining participants who remained in these plans on the insurance exchange. Judging by the judge's order, there are still 3.2 million individuals who are covered under these plans. No one was 0cc13bf012
